NEW OFFICIALS APPROVE CITY WPA PROGRAM

Agree to $9,000 Appropriation from 1936 Funds Provided It's Legal.

WILL GIVE JOBS TO 550

One Section of Plans Submitted to City's Law Department.

Launching of WPA projects here which will give approximately 550 men work for six months, was a step nearer today following approval by Dr. F. C. Smith, mayor-elect, and other newly elected officials of a program devised by WPA and present city officials.

Approval of a plan to take $9,000 of next year's gasoline and auto license fund, provided all phases are legal, was given last night at a meeting of present officials and newly elected officials in the council chambers.

The $9,000 is to pay for the city's share of WPA projects totaling more than $200,000.

One phase of the program, a storm water sewer project in East Church street, was being checked today by Solicitor Theodore B. Sachs and Ralph E. Carhart, solicitor-elect, to determine if gasoline tax money can be legally used for this purpose. The state law provides that money from this source must be used for street maintenance.

W. M. Fabian, chairman of council finance committee, said today that the majority of the projects would be signed by the first of the week and should be approved by federal officials by the middle of December.

Other Projects

Besides the East Church street sewer work, the projects include work at the sewage treatment works, paving of sections of 27 streets and relaying of bricks on a number of other streets.

Work at the sewage plant included replacement of approximately 14 tons of stone in two of the four filter beds. This will call for an expenditure by the city of $2,000 and will provide work for about 150 men for six months.

(It this project depends another repaving of sections of 27 streets. Stone taken from the filter beds will be used in macadamizing these streets, cutting material costs to $2,000 for bituminous material for top surfacing. This project is estimated to take care of 200 men for six months. The total project includes 24,040 lineal feet.

To Improve Sewer System

The storm water sewer in East Church street will require another $7,000 expenditure by the city and will give 30 men work for six months. The project is intended to improve poor surface drainage facilities in the East Side. The route of the proposed sewer is from the first alley east of Reed avenue to Delaware avenue on Church street, to Forest Lawn boulevard from Church street to Center street and thence east on Center to Boone avenue.

The brick relaying project, which will require little outlay of money by the city, has already been approved.

Airport Plan Approved

In addition to these projects another calling for grading at the Marion airport has been approved. This will give work to approximately 70 men for six months.

O. N. Essex, PWA engineer here, estimates these projects will take care of a majority of the 915 employables now on relief rolls.

The plan to take funds from 1936 gasoline tax money was forwarded to city officials when it was learned that the city could not issue additional bonds for work because the debt is already near its legal debt limitation.

URBANA CITIZENS FIGHT GAS RATE

By The Associated Press

URBANA, O., Nov. 23—Urbana citizens took up arms today against a 5-cent gas rate ordinance passed by city council over Mayor W. W. Hicks's veto. John H. James circulated a petition requiring 350 signatures to compel a referendum on the ordinance.

C. G. Abbott, local manager of the Ohio Fuel Gas Co., said the petition would be useless since the public utilities commission had already approved the ordinance.

LEWIS RESIGNS A. F. OF L. POST

Notice Given Green Seen as Climax to Mine Leader's "Vertical" Unionization.

LOST CONVENTION FIGHT

Dispute at Atlanta Few Weeks Ago Brought Him Into Fist Fight With Foe.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.— John L. Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers of America, resigned today as vice president of the American Federation of Labor.

Lewis announced his resignation in a brief letter to William Green, president of the federation, saying:

"Effective this date, I resign as a vice president of the American Federation of Labor."

His resignation came as a surprise and brought forward again the long-standing conflict between Lewis and Green over two opposed theories of labor organization. Lewis had supported organization of unions by industries, the "vertical" type, while Green held to the long established "horizontal" union by crafts.

Early this week the conflict between the two large labor leaders was emphasized when the federation made public a list of answers to accusations by Lewis that the federation had failed in many of its projects.

Particularly Lewis had complained that the federation had, by its own influence, brought enactment of only two measures in the last session of congress while other agencies had put through many more for the benefit of labor.

The recent federation convention at Atlantic City resulted in a vote adverse to Lewis in his effort to have the organization rebuilt along industrial unionization lines.

Conflict was so hot that he participated in a fist fight with one of the opponents of his proposals.

VOLCANO CONTINUES MOLTEN OUTPOURING

Parties from Neighboring Islands Arrive by Boat and Plane To See Sight.

By The Associated Press

HILO, Hawaii, Nov. 23—Mauna Loa spewed fiery lava with undiminished fury today, attracting throngs of sightseers by its spectacular eruption.

Five blazing rivers of lava crawled down the slopes of the volcano. One mile-wide stream extended 13 miles down the north side to within 25 miles of Hilo. Its future course depended upon the degree of activity within the crater, but there was little fear it would reach the city, largest on the island.

However, should the lava approach too close, Dr. Thomas A. Jaggar, government volcanologist, was prepared to divert its flow by blasting.

Parties came from Honolulu, on the neighboring island of Oahu, by airplane and steamer, with "mattress space only" available on the boats and passengers sleeping on deck.

The molten lava threatened a desolate country between two big ranches. Nothing could yet be told as to its final course, but there was no immediate threat to the Humuula sheep station nor to important trails.

A correspondent flew over the volcano yesterday in a navy airplane, and a wall of solid flame, 500 feet wide, 1,000 feet long and 2,000 feet thick could be seen burning fiercely in the crater a mile away. Fiery fountains played within the crater, while not far away snow covered a large area of the mountain top.

The eruption began Thursday, 18 hours after an earthquake jarred Hilo, and a small tidal wave slightly damaged its waterfront.

One Hunter Bags Rabbit as Events Get Under Way.

BY BOB MYRD
Marion Star Staff Writer

A score of archery enthusiasts from various parts of the state that made up what probably was the first organized game hunt with bows and arrows in Ohio since the Indians used these weapons to hunt deer, turkeys and other wild game went afield today near Norton in northern Delaware county to launch a new experiment in the field of sports.

The archers, some of them nationally and internationally prominent in the art that Robin Hood made famous, had the blessing of the state division of conservation as they held the first of what is expected to be annual bow and arrow hunts. The conservation division a few weeks ago leased a 500-acre game preserve near Norton for exclusive use of the archers. Lawrence Wcodell, state conservation commissioner and an ardent follower of the sport of archery, was expected to join the hunters this afternoon but was called out of Columbus on business that prevented him from attending.

One Rabbit Bagged

Some of the party arrived late this morning at the game preserve to get an early start, and by noon one rabbit had been bagged. It was shot by Carl Oelschleger, one of a group of Cleveland archery enthusiasts in the group.

The archers planned to spend the entire afternoon hunting. Sunday they will compete in an archery golf contest at Ohio State university, substituting arrows for golf balls and trapels for cups.

Miss Frances Schweitzer, 15-year-old Cleveland girl who this year won two national championships in archery, was among the first ones hunting this morning. Although her skill was proven last August in California when she won the woman's national archery golf championship and the national junior girls' championship in target shooting, she wanted to get a rabbit or other game to satisfy herself of her ability.

Also in the party was William Folberth Sr. of Cleveland, international amateur men's champion, a title he won in competition in August at Toronto, Canada. He is the father of the present state target champion, William Jr., who did not take part in today's hunt.

First Annual Hunt

Today's event officially is known as the first annual hunt of the Ohio Archery Golf and Hunting association, an organization of 60 Ohio archers formed last May to increase the scope of activities of enthusiasts who in the past confined their sport to target practice and archery golf.

President of the association is Dr. Harlan G. Metcalf of the physical education department at Ohio State university. Dr. Paris D. Stockdale of the geology department of the university is secretary and treasurer.

The association with cooperation of the state division of conservation, signed leases recently with William Condreth, J. C. Brundige and B. G. Brundige of near Norton to use a 500-acre tract as a game preserve for archers. The tract was leased for this purpose for a one-year experimental period in the hope that a more permanent arrangement can be made if the archery hunts prove popular.

Dr. Metcalf is optimistic about the future of archery hunting in the state in the future. He visualized a program on the part of the association to grow suitable cover for game, principally rabbits, and said a club house may be built for members if there is sufficient interest in the sport project to warrant it.

He emphasized that the 500-acre preserve is open to all Ohio archers. The principal limitations so far as hunting is concerned on

CRASH VICTIM TO BE BURIED HERE MONDAY

Body of Mrs. Clarabelle Morrison Brought Here from Welch, W. Va.

The body of Mrs. Clarabelle Morrison, 40, former Marion beauty parlor operator who met death in an automobile accident near Welch, W. Va., yesterday, arrived here this morning and arrangements were made to hold funeral services Monday at 2 p. m. Services will be held at the Axe funeral home and burial will be made in Marion cemetery.

Mrs. Morrison was one of three persons killed when, according to an Associated Press report, their automobile sideswiped a truck and plunged 20 feet over an embankment. The other persons killed were Alonzo Brewster of Welch, driver of the car and Mrs. Minnie Gibson of Roderfield, W. Va. Elpin Mabry of Roderfield, who sat in a rear seat escaped with minor injuries.

Rescuers cut through the top of the machine to recover the bodies from the wreckage. Police said the car landed on another road below the mountain route on which Brewster was driving.

Mrs. Morrison went from Marion to Welch, W. Va., about three years ago. She was born in Upper Sandusky, daughter of the late George and Olive Frost Watkins.

OIL BAN MAY RESULT IN WAR

Italian Government Reported Warning France Against Imposition of Embargo.

British Consider Halting Shipments as Italy Retaliates to Sanctions with Boycott.

BY DEVON FRANCIS
Associated Press Staff Writer

Angered by the imminent pinch of sanctions, the kingdom of Italy replied in kind today to the nations seeking to halt its east African campaign at arms by financial and economic pressure.

The Italian government was reported to have warned France that imposition of an oil embargo "would mean war."

The United States government already has taken steps to halt oil shipments to Italy from this country, and the British were reported toying with the idea of imposing an oil and coal embargo.

Italy initiated a Franco-British boycott in retaliation for refusal of those nations to relent on sanctions.

In Addis Ababa Ethiopian officials were jubilant over the American government's appeal to halt oil shipments. That, they said, would be the most serious blow that could be dealt Italy.

To Avoid Conference

The Fascist state notified the international labor office at Geneva it would not be represented at the international maritime conference—interpreted in official circles there as an expression of resentment against sanctions.

Speculation arose as to whether Italy would walk out of the league, bag and baggage, if an embargo on exports of oil, coal, iron and steel to Italy were added to the arms, financial and economic sanctions already put into effect.

Cautious Premier Laval, indefatigable seeker after peace, was understood to be opposed to an oil embargo, fearing it would heighten diplomatic tension in Rome and other capitals and, by irritating Premier Mussolini, wipe out all hopes of settling the Italo-Ethiopian conflict.

In receipts of unbending replies from France and Great Britain to protests against war penalties, Italy took quick reprisal measures. The counter-blows were initiated by Crown Prince Umberto in ordering his wardrobe cleared of all foreign clothes and replenished with Italian cloth fashioned by Italian tailors.

Royalty Backs Duce

Thus he put the royal family once again as supporting Il Duce's empire-building program in east Africa.

Fascists tore down street signs bearing the names of Brussels and Liege and put up in their place the names "Damazio Birago" and "November 19." November 18 was the effective date of the sanctions voted by the League of Nations. It is known to Italians as their "day of shame."

The nation tightened its belt, too, to make itself self-sufficient and independent of outside help.

The Geneva meeting which Italy refused to attend will consider an international draft convention to be placed on the agenda of the maritime session of the international labor conference a year from now. Twenty-four nations includ-

BUSINESS INCREASE LABELED HEALTHY

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23—The current business expansion was tagged a healthy one today by Marriner S. Eccles, chairman of the federal reserve board.

"It is clear," he said, "that there is no excessive expansion in any field at this time.

"There is no evidence of accumulation of inventories, of frantic bidding for a limited amount of goods, or of an expansion of bank credit, save through the purchase of government securities. The turnover of deposits is relatively low."

ALAMEDA, Calif., Nov. 23—A thundering pegasus blazed Uncle Sam's air mail trail across the Pacific today—pushing on from where the pony express halted.

The China Clipper, 25-ton seaplane, soaring easily and swiftly under its two-ton load of 115,000 letters, was expected to reach Honolulu, 2,400 miles away, this afternoon.

Hourly reports by radio informed Pan-American Airways headquarters here of the Clipper's progress, on the first and longest leg of its 8,000-mile flight to Manila, by way of Honolulu, Wake and Guam.

Thousands Await Ship

Thousands of people waited in the Hawaiian metropolis to shout a greeting to the first of a sky fleet which ultimately will carry passengers to Canton, China.

As far as Capt. Edwin C. Musick, commander, and his crew of eight were concerned, the flight was merely a routine job.

But to massed thousands who watched the great seaplane head out over San Francisco's Golden Gate, it marked a new era in aviation.

Postmaster General James A. Farley described the flight as the beginning "of the greatest and most significant achievement in the marvelous and fascinating development of air transportation."

Almost as the China Clipper soared away, her sister-ship, the Philippine Clipper, arrived at Acapulco, Mex., from Miami, en route here to be placed in Trans-Pacific service. Others will follow until there are sufficient planes for weekly service between here and the Philippines.

Largest Load On Record

Postmaster William J. McCarthy of San Francisco said the China Clipper's mail load was the largest single-load "first cover" consignment on record. Farley said the postoffice would realize a profit of $47,000 on the flight, the gross revenue being $63,000 and the cost $16,000.

No passengers were aboard the seaplane, but 23 airways employes will board at Honolulu for transportation to way stations at Midway, Wake, Guam and Manila. Passenger service will not be started until the mail service is thoroughly under way.

SONG SERVICE SUNDAY

WAR VETERAN TO MARK 97TH MILESTONE MONDAY

Samuel E. Hain Is Among Ohio's Oldest Survivors of Union Forces.

Samuel E. Hain of Marion, one of Ohio's oldest Civil war veterans, will celebrate his ninety-seventh birthday anniversary Monday.

The near-centenarian spent two years in the Civil war and lost a brother in the battle of Gettysburg.

Mr. Hain's grandfather, Daniel, a native of Pennsylvania, brought his family to Marion county in a covered wagon in 1830. Mr. Hain's father was one of Daniel Hain's 15 children.

Sitting at his home at 135 East Walnut street, where he is confined by an illness since August, Mr. Hain recently recalled how the log house in Pleasant township where he was born had a wooden latch and wooden hinges.

He also remembers coming to Marion, as a boy, when the only house on Delaware avenue was the Gordon house at what is now 619 Delaware avenue, opposite the Marion cemetery. From that point northward there was nothing but a wooded road until the first houses "in town" were reached at a point where the Ellis apartment building stands.

Enlisted At 23

At the age of 23, Mr. Hain enlisted in the Union army. He was trained at Camp Denison, near Cincinnati, and had been advanced to the rank of corporal with Co. K, Fourth Ohio Volunteer Infantry when he was discharged.

He remembers the long days of hard marching that were part of his army experience.

"Sometimes we'd start marching at daylight and keep going until 11 o'clock at night," he said.

Battles in which he took part include those at Middle Fork bridge, Rich Mountain, Petersburg, W. Va., Beverly and Laurel Hills, Hanging Rock Pass, Romney, Falmouth and Malvern Hill. His brother, Albert, lost his life in the Battle of Gettysburg.

On Sept. 15, 1864, shortly after his return from the war, Mr. Hain was married to Orpha Snyder, also a native of Pleasant township. She died in 1907.

Held Public Office

Mr. Hain served Pleasant township as clerk for a decade and served two terms as county auditor, beginning in 1871. About 1876 he ran a grocery on East Center street in Marion in the name of Hain and Love, but this business venture was cut short by a fire that destroyed the store.

He spent most of his active life farming in Pleasant township. He has lived at his present home since 1907.

His public service also included terms on the board of education in both Marion and Pleasant township. He also served as township treasurer. He is a former Marion county school examiner.

As a young man, he worked for some time as a clerk for Lucas & Seffner, grain dealers and oper

Morrow Co. Man Is Stricken at Wheel of Auto

E. P. Roshon, Former Marion Co. Resident, Dies Suddenly in Car.

A former Marion county resident, Erwin P. Roshon, 76, of north of Williamsport, Morrow county, died at the wheel of his automobile on the Bloominggrove-Williamsport road at 3:30 p. m. yesterday, the car crashing into the ditch when the driver collapsed. Death was caused by myocarditis, a form of heart disease, Dr. T. Carle of Mt. Gilead, Morrow county coroner, reported.

Mr. Roshon was driving a granddaughter from his home to Galion when his automobile became stalled near that city. He was trying to crank the motor when a passing motorist, Earl Morrer of 536½ East street, Bucyrus, offered to push the Roshon car to get it started.

As Mr. Roshon succeded in starting his automobile after the Bucyrus car had pushed it approximately 400 feet he threw up his hands and collapsed, his car crashing into the ditch. Mr. Morrer stopped his machine and ran to the Roshon automobile to find the driver dead.

Mr. Roshon was born in Pennsylvania, the son of Daniel and Mary Roshon. He moved to Morrow county from Marion 16 years ago. Mr. Roshon also formerly lived in Grand township in Marion county. He is survived by his wife, Carrie, and five children, Mrs. Mabel Barnes of Mt. Gilead, Vernon Roshon of Galion, Orral Roshon at home, and Glenn and Ray Roshon of north of Kenton.

Mr. Roshon was a member of Pleasant Grove Church of Christ in Morrow county. The funeral will be held at the home at 2 p. m. Monday, with Rev. W. R. Ellis in charge of the services. Burial will be made at Bear Run cemetery.

FOES OPEN FIRE ON SALES TAX

Dargusch Comes to Its Defense, Claiming Its Legality Is Certain.

FARMERS ATTACK LEVY

Thomas of Marion Backs County Treasurers in Demand for Rate Reduction.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 23—Three forces concentrated fire today on Ohio's three per cent general sales tax, source of $38,000,000 in revenue in 42 weeks.

A high tax official immediately rose to defend it against a challenge of its constitutionality in the state supreme court, a demand of 4,000 farmers to exempt "necessities of life," and a request of county treasurers for a reduction to two per cent.

Carlton S. Dargusch, vice chairman of the state tax commission, expressed belief the tax is constitutional, without a doubt."

Want Net Income Levy

The farmers, delegates to the 17th annual Ohio Farm Bureau federation convention, adopted a resolution demanding substitution of a net income tax for the sales tax.

"A net income tax would produce no revenue until 1937," Dargusch countered.

Other observers declared a net income tax capable of producing comparable revenue would be so high as to be confiscatory.

A Summit county farmer, Michael L. Fox, entered in the supreme court a motion for review of an appellate court decision holding the law valid. He challenged the law's requirement that the vendor purchase prepaid tax receipts from the state before he collects the tax from the customer.

Fox, who sells his produce in Akron, contended this provision discriminates in favor of the farmer selling at the farm. The latter is not required to collect the tax.

R. P. Barthalow, chief of the sales tax division, said preparations had been made to require collecting by all farmers if the court ruled the exemption unconstitutional.

Consider Reenactment

The legislature is considering reenactment of the sales tax law in keeping with Gov. Davey's program of "no new taxes" for 1936.

The state association of county treasurers urged reduction to two per cent when Representative Earl E. Thomas of Marion county told them the lower levy would produce as much as the present levy if exemptions were not allowed. Exemptions include bread, milk, and beer and malt products.

OFFICIAL PICKS HER SUCCESSOR

Welfare Director Names Mrs. Marguerite Reilley of Cleveland to Reformatory Job.

LEADER SILENT ON CAUSE

Outgoing Superintendent Denied Last Wednesday Having 'Made Deal' with Davey.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 23 — Mrs. Margaret Allman, state director of welfare, announced today the resignation of Mrs. Louise Mittendorf, as superintendent of the Ohio reformatory for women at Marysville and said she would be succeeded by Mrs. Marguerite Reilley of Cleveland.

Mrs. Allman said Mrs. Mittendorf submitted the resignation last Nov. 12.

Mrs. Mittendorf said at Marysville that she kept her resignation secret at the request of Mrs. Allman to prevent "a stampede of office seekers."

Says She's Tired

"Due to the overcrowded conditions and the lack of enough assistants during the 20 years, I'm tired," Mrs. Mittendorf said. "Having had several good offers, among them a radio position, I feel it not worth while to continue the struggle any longer."

Asked if the resignation was voluntary, Mrs. Mittendorf answered:

"I do not care to answer that. That will come out later."

Denies Plan Wednesday

Mrs. Mittendorf denied emphatically Wednesday that she had made a "deal" with Gov. Davey to resign and asserted that she would demand an explanation if any one asked her to resign.

Mrs. Allman in the statement said that Mrs. Reilley, a prominent member of the Cleveland bar, would assume her new duties, Dec. 2.

The gray-haired Mrs. Mittendorf was the first and only superintendent of the reformatory, which was established in 1916. There are 300 women housed in the prison.

Both Mrs. Mittendorf and her husband, Louis, who was superintendent of buildings at the institution, were under civil service.

Mrs. Allman Out of City

At Mrs. Allman's hotel residence in Columbus, it was said that she was out of the city. Her home is in Canton.

Mrs. Reilley is married and has two children, Jean, 16, and Frank Jr., 13. She began a career as a country school teacher, later doing specialized work with incorrigible boys.

For a year, Mrs. Reilley was associated with the late Jane Addams at the famous Hull House in Chicago. Later she served as superintendent of the Cleveland public playgrounds.

A graduate of the Cleveland Law school, Mrs. Reilley served as assistant Cuyahoga county prosecutor for four years and for two years was assistant police prosecutor of Cleveland.

Mrs. Mittendorf is the third head of a penal institution to step out since Gov. Davey took office last January.

Suspended Thomas

The governor suspended Preston E. Thomas for 22 years warden of Ohio penitentiary, within a few weeks after his inauguration. He filed charges against Thomas with the civil service commission. In the midst of a hearing on the charges, Thomas resigned, Mrs. Allman dropped the charges against him, and James C. Wood-

MAN KILLS 2 WOMEN, THEN ENDS OWN LIFE

Ohioan Slays Former Wife With Ax and Stepdaughter With Beer Bottle.

By The Associated Press

STEUBENVILLE, O., Nov. 23—Officials sought new light today on the murder of two women, whose slayer died six hours later, without explaining the exact cause of the tragedy.

Henry Nemeth, 50, farmer and operator of small coal mines, late yesterday hacked his former wife, Nellie, 40, to death with an ax, and killed his stepdaughter, Katherine Wotchc, 20, with blows from a beer bottle. Then he shot himself in the head.

Sheriff Ray Long said he believed the man sought unsuccessfully to effect a reconciliation with the former wife, who obtained a divorce several months ago.

The younger woman, the sheriff said, apparently was beaten when she tried to stop the two from quarreling. The woman evidently went to a barn to hide, the sheriff said.

Nemeth died in Ohio Valley hospital without regaining consciousness.

ators of a dry goods store in Marion.

Mr. Hain's parents were the late Adam and Ann Ebert Hain of Pleasant township. Mr. Hain is the father of two children, Frank A. and Miss May F. Hain. Miss Hain is a retired teacher, having taught in the Marion city schools a number of years. She taught at various times at the Greenwood, Central Junior, State Street and Pearl Street buildings and served as principal at the Oakland building.

Taught in Pleasant Township.

When his daughter's teaching experience was mentioned, it reminded Mr. Hain of his experiences as a teacher in the Pleasant township schools.

"I taught there 15 terms—not 15 years because the terms were only a few months long then. We had school only in the winter months," he said.

Despite his age and an illness that will prevent any form of celebration of his anniversary Monday, Mr. Hain has a keen interest in current events. He follows two daily newspapers and several magazines and enjoys listening to the radio.

Records in the files of the state organization of the Grand Army of the Republic do not contain a complete list of the ages of Ohio's veterans, but state G. A. R. officials rank Mr. Hain as one of the oldest in the state. He is Marion county's oldest veteran, according to records of Marion county veterans.

ITALY WARNS OIL BAN WOULD MEAN WAR

ing the United States, were invited.

Meanwhile Fascist arms rode the crest of new victories today toward the first major objective of Italy's war for the subjugation of Ethiopia.

Part of the Ogaden area on the southern front, a huge patch in the southeastern quarter of Emperor Haile Selassie's domain has come under the domination of Italian troops, the Rome government announced.

On that terrain, largely desert but gullied and terraced by hills in the north, Premier Mussolini's legions intend to brace their feet for a push northward to link Italian Somaliland with Italy's other east African colony, Eritrea.

Column Heads for Dessye

Simultaneously, another threat by the Italians, in the form of a spear-like column marching toward Dessye across the barren Danakil desert from Assab, Eritrea, was launched as a general flanking movement from the east.

If this "darkhorse" army, trekking over an area as desolate perhaps as any in the world, can throw its power on Dessye, Ethiopian field headquarters and a troop concentration point, Premier Mussolini's forces will be in sight of his first major objective.

The Italians could strike north, helping the original Eritrean army to complete its drive southward through hazardous, mountainous terrain, or it could strike south to help the Somaliland forces capture Harar.

Competion of this maneuver would permit control of Ethiopia's only rail outlet to the outside world, the Addis Ababa-Djibouti line, and practically assure the fall of the Ethiopian capital.

Davey Praises Man Elected on Coughlin Plan

Cincinnati Councilman To Seek To Extend Sway into State and Nation.

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, Nov. 23—Felicitated on his election by Gov. Davey, Rev. Herbert S. Bigelow, follower of Rev. Charles E. Coughlin and first Independent ever seated in Cincinnati's city council, planned today what friends construed as his initial move toward an election pledge, to extend his newly found power to state and national politics.

Recalling Fr. Coughlin's attack last Sunday on new deal policies, "The People's Voice," published by Bigelow, said he would speak tomorrow on the subject "Roosevelt or Coughlin?"

Bigelow is leader here of Fr. Coughlin's national union for social justice.

The announcement came simultaneously with another, that Gov. Davey had written Bigelow a letter of congratulation on his election. This, too, aroused political speculation.

"Knowing you as I do," the governor wrote, "your victory means a great deal to me personally, and I rejoice with you in your success.

"There is no doubt but that you will give a fine measure of public service."

Declining use of their names, political observers cited Fr. Coughlin's radio speech last Sunday; Bigelow's address tomorrow, and Davey's clashes with the Roosevelt administration over relief questions.

The "People's Voice" stressed the "importance" of Bigelow's topic tomorrow, "in view of Fr. Coughlin's attack" and added:

"Many of the social justice people are Democrats and are considerably disturbed by the prospect of an open break between the National Union for Social Justice and the Roosevelt administration."

Bigelow was felicitated by the Detroit radio priest when his election became known and in turn promised an attempt to extend his influence into state and national fields.

ROOSEVELT, DAVEY INDORSED AT LIMA

Allen County Democrats Warn Farley Against Nomination Fight Over Governorship.

By The Associated Press

LIMA, O., Nov. 23 — President Roosevelt and Gov. Davey carried today the indorsement of the Allen county Democratic executive committee for renomination in 1936.

Earl Ludwig, committee chairman, in a letter to Postmaster General James Farley, national Democratic chairman, described Davey as "the best bet the Democrats of Ohio have for 1936."

"We are for the President 100 per cent here in Allen county, and I think the sentiment here is the same as that prevailing over other parts of the state," Ludwig wrote.

"If a bitter nomination fight takes place for the Democratic nomination for the governor of Ohio, President Roosevelt will not carry Ohio in 1936, and Ohio will have a Republican governor. Don't let any one fool you on that."

Referring to a movement among some Democrats who favor the candidacy of Charles Sawyer of Cincinnati, Democratic candidate defeated by Gov. Davey in the primary last year, Ludwig said:

"I supported Charles Sawyer for the nomination in 1934. I am a personal friend of his. I admire him a lot. But he has no business in the 1936 race for governor  believe it or not. It will be a sorry day for the President and the state and national Democratic programs if a nomination fight is put on against Gov. Davey."

RECALL INDIAN DAYS AT ARCHERY HUNT

this area is that dogs and guns are barred. The tract is posted as the state archery game preserve.

Growing In Popularity

Bows and arrows have been popular weapons in several fields of hunting, the archery enthusiasts said as they rested after making a preliminary trip over the preserve this morning. They said Michigan has several acres set aside for this type of hunting, and spoke enviously of big-game hunters who have done everything in the way of hunting with bows and arrows from shooting deer in nearby states to big game hunting in Africa.

Some archers contend that a well-placed steel-headed arrow, the points usually as sharp as razors, is more effective on big game than rifle fire. For small game, it is more merciful, for seldom does a rabbit struck by an arrow live long enough to suffer, they pointed out. Whereas many rabbits wounded by gunfire are able to escape hunters and later die painfully, an arrow nearly always stops the game and prevents this, it was pointed out.

The archers concede that they can in no way compete in game-bagging accomplishments with hunters armed with shotguns, but they argue that the thrill of bagging a rabbit and maybe even a pheasant with a barb-tipped wand of wood no larger in diameter than a pencil is much greater than the satisfaction that comes to hunters who carry shotguns and use dogs to round up their game.

Like the fishermen who prefer to limit themselves to light tackle when casting for game fish, they apparently regard the method of capture more important than the amount of game that reaches the frying pan.

Others To Come

Among the archers expected to join the hunt later this afternoon was J. P. Schweitzer Jr., a junior at Ohio State university and winner of the 1934 archery golf championship at Storrs, Conn. He is a brother of the 15-year-old woman's champion of this year. Their parents arrived at the game preserve this morning and Mr. Schweitzer joined his daughter in the hunt.

Others who had arrived by noon included Richard Neubecker and Al Jirousek of Cleveland, C. H. Duttweiler of Findlay, F. S. Bartholomew, Y. M. C. A. physical director at Tiffin, Fred Strother, Boy Scout field executive of Columbus, and Howard Hamilton, secretary of the arts college at Ohio State university.

MRS. L. MITTENDORF QUITS REFORMATORY

ard deputy warden under Thomas, became warden.

W. F. Amrine for many years head of the London prison farm, became embroiled with Mrs. Allman over a request from the welfare director that he designate the political affiliations of all employes under him. Amrine declined to submit to the request and offered his resignation. Gov. Davey, charging Amrine with "political partisanship," ordered Mrs. Allman to accept the resignation.

Supt. T. C. Jenkins of the Ohio state reformatory at Mansfield was transferred to London as superintendent and Arthur L. Glattke of Toledo, was named superintendent at Mansfield.

Davey Voiced Disapproval

Gov. Davey indicated on Nov. 2 that he would seek to oust Mrs. Mittendorf as reformatory superintendent.

The governor said at that time that federal narcotic agents recently made a report to him on an investigation of the Marysville institution.

"There are two or three bad institutions in Ohio and I intend to clean them up just as soon as possible," Gov. Davey said earlier this month.

Mrs. Mittendorf, a former resident of Dayton, was appointed superintendent by the late Gov. Frank Willis. She claimed to have been the first woman probation officer in Montgomery county.

Resignation of the superintendent was not unexpected. Unconfirmed reports have been current for two weeks that her resignation would be announced as soon as the governor selected a successor.

Mrs. Mittendorf in an interview, Wednesday, declared:

"I've done nothing that they should want me to resign. I would demand an explanation of the situation."

Mrs. Mittendorf said then that the only quarrel she had with the administration was with George Williams, former food inspector for the state welfare department. Williams was dismissed.

Says He Was Sore

"Williams was sore because he couldn't find anything wrong here," Mrs. Mittendorf said.

Williams had described conditions at the reformatory as "deplorable."

Mrs. Mittendorf boasted that the institution had never been the scene of a riot or serious trouble.

"I do not say we have not been near one at times, but such things usually can be foreseen and steps are taken to prevent them," she said recently. "Of course, we have had a few escapes."

Mrs. Mittendorf said that the institution needed badly a psychopathic ward and other isolation wards and a planned education program for inmates.

ITALIANS DENOUNCE U. S. WAR STAND

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23—The anti-American demonstration at Padua, Italy, added new problems today for the state department in meeting situations arising under the neutrality act.

Although the neutrality act provides only that Americans traveling abroad should not use ships of belligerent nations, this raised a question as to whether their actual presence in belligerent countries might not be considered by the state department also to be at their own risk.

It was recalled that an effort was made by several senators in the last session to write into the neutrality act a specific provision that Americans traveling in war zones did so at their own risk.

1,200 YOUNGSTERS BRING TOYS TO YULETIDE SHOW

First Donotions to Community Christmas Party Pile Up Today at Ohio Theater.

All streets led to the Ohio theater this morning as approximately 1,200 children, with mysterious looking packages tucked under their arms, made their way to the "toy show" which officially launched their part in the third annual children's community Christmas party to be held Christmas morning at the Palace theater.

The toy show, which has come to be a fixture in the Christmas party committee's plans for the annual festivity, resulted in collection of hundreds of toys, the price of admission to the show this morning. Some brought more than the "regular admission price" of one toy, and cartons, carried to the temporary "toy repair shop" to be located this year in the Cummin Memorial building on East Center street, held between 1,500 and 1,300 toys, the committee estimates.

The toys for the most part were in good condition and many were new. They will be taken over by members of the Phalanx club, who each year assume the work of repairing and redecorating the toys.

"They were a grand bunch of youngsters," was the unanimous opinion of members of the toy show committee, who with Fire Captain Owen Sifrit were on hand to care for the crowd. Members of the committee are C. J. Lehner, chairman, W. B. Burley, M. W. Lewis and Dr. A. F. Linscott.

John J. Huebner, Ohio theater manager and host for the occasion, entertained the children with a feature picture, "The Dude Ranger," by Zane Grey, starring George O'Brien, and short subjects including a Mickey Mouse picture, two Silly Symphonies and a Terrytone cartoon.

Major Bowes' Troupers Entertain Here Today

Marionites are promised varied and above-the-average entertainment in the Major Bowes amateur hour unit show which gave two performances this afternoon at the Palace theater and which will be staged again tonight at 6:10, 8:25 and 10:30.

None of the performers "got the gong" on the Sunday night radio programs of Major Bowes and several of them, including Miss Elsie Tucker who joined the unit Thursday night in Warren, have received among the heaviest popular vote ever cast for the amateurs.

Russell Koontz, the manager, has been in the show business for 17 years, and never he said yesterday when he stopped in Marion to arrange overnight accommodations for the company, has he seen a heartier response to stage entertainment than has been given the Major Bowes unit with which he is traveling.

The company is on its fifth week of road touring and has virtually covered Ohio. Among the cities in which the company appeared before the Warren engagement Thursday night and the show at Kenton last night, are Zanesville, Steubenville, Portsmouth, Canton and Lima. Points in Pennsylvania and West Virginia have been visited and in December the unit will hit the "big time," Mr. Koontz said, appearing in Grand Rapids, Ann Arbor, Kalamazoo, Lansing, Saginaw and Flint, Mich.

Hunter Rebuked By Rogers for Death of Fawn

In connection with a nationwide campaign to raise funds to establish memorial to Will Rogers, The Star is publishing a series of articles coming from noted men who knew the famous humorist and philosopher. One of these articles appears below. With each article there appears a coupon which may be used in making contributions to the memorial fund. Contributions may be forwarded to the Marion county committee, of which Fred W. Warner is chairman, or to any in Marion county, each bank having been named a depositary.

Will Rogers' love of animals was not confined to horses, which he broke so efficiently or rode so skillfully.

E. V. Schrimsher, of Roswell, N. M., a cousin of the actor-humorist, recalls this incident, which occurred when Will was a youth of 16, not yet embarked on the career which was to make him famous:

"One day, when Will was spending part of his summer at my home near Claremore (Okla.), I had tried to induce him to go hunting with me. But he refused so I went alone and shot a beautiful white fawn. When I returned I was proudly taking it off my horse when Will walked up, looked at the dead fawn and said:

"'You oughtn't to have killed it,' then walked away."

FATHER OF PLAYER SHOOTS GRID COACH

By United Press

LAKE CHARLES, La., Nov. 23—Angered because his son was dismissed from the football team, R. A. Russell, a cabinet maker, invaded the Lake Charles High school yesterday and shot P. S. Killen, the football coach, then shot himself.

Killen was in the school auditrouim conducting a pep meeting for tonight's game with Abbeville which has been cancelled. Russell had Killen summoned to a hallway, where he shot him.

Both men were wounded critically.

Russell had nursed a grudge against the coach for a year, following dismissal of his son, Clifford, from the team. Bystanders said Killen came from the auditorium in response to Russell's summons, walked up to him and extended his hand in a friendly gesture. Russell began firing.

Style Show At Palace Benefits Civic Orchestra

Smart autumn and winter costumes were cleverly modeled in a style show sponsored by the Women's Symphony board last night on the stage at the Palace theater. A large audience saw the style show which shared the bill with a feature picture, "A Feather in Her Hat," starring Pauline Lord, Basil Rathbone and a supporting cast of stellar calibre, and a trio of news and short subjects.

The style show centered around a musical theme with a collegiate setting, and the models did a fine bit of work in displaying the gowns. Acting as models for the revue were Mrs. Bovie Morgan, Mrs. Francis Blake, Mrs. Dee Sherrer, Misses Isabel Cheney, Nan Lightner, Arlett Behler, Norrine Ehrick, Lavona Pearcock and Bernita LeMasters.

A catchy musical number composed by Mrs. Harold K. Mouser, president of the sponsoring group, especially for the revue described "a girl with a feather in her hat." Sung by Miss Bernita LeMasters, the song provided an appropriate and gay opener for the style parade. The models closed the second scene with a musical number, and for the football color parade a male quartet composed of George Rule, Howard Orr, John Lacey and Harold Bradt. The quartet provided a colorful musical setting for the "Football Color Parade," with their medley of college songs as the models paraded the newest costumes for sports wear.

Evening costumes held the spotlight in the closing scene which opened with Miss LeMasters singing "Top Hat." Members of the quartet escorted the models on a "blind" date to the "Varsity Hop." Members of the board assisted in the production with Mrs. Mouser presiding at the piano.

Proceeds of the show will be used to aid in financing the activities of the Marion Civic orchestra which is being sponsored by the Women's board. The orchestra is scheduled to present its first concert of the season at an early date.

Your Health

BY DR. R. S. COPELAND

Wry-Neck.

WRY-NECK IS a painful inflammation of the muscles of the neck. The doctors call it "torticollis". Sometimes it is present from birth, when it is spoken of as "congenital torticollis". Fortunately, this form of wry-neck is rare.

It is frequently encountered in adults. The victim thinks it comes from exposure to draught or cold, perhaps in a sleeping car, on a boat, or from sleeping in a breezy chamber.

If you ever have suffered from acute wry-neck you will agree that it is an extremely painful and annoying complaint. The sufferer may be aroused from a deep sleep by severe pain in the neck. Indeed, the pain comes on so suddenly that the sufferer becomes quite alarmed.

It is pretty certain that the trouble is really wry-neck if the pain is excited by movement of the head. As a rule there can be found a comfortable position. If the head is tilted toward the painful side the discomfort is materially diminished. This relief comes from relaxation of the involved muscles. Sometimes the symptom is less marked if the chin is held upward.

The application of heat is beneficial. In severe cases, "diathermy" is recommended. Your doctor will tell you about this treatment.

Of course, not all cases of torticollis are treated alike. In fact, mild wry-neck requires no treatment at all, the discomfort disappearing of its own accord within a very short time.

The chronic form requires skillful treatment. Unfortunately, an operation is usually the only thing that will help the chronic or the persistent congenital form. In these cases the head is carried to one side because it is impossible to hold it in any other position. The muscles on the affected side of the head have become shortened because of the inflammation. This leads to a permanent tilting of the head to one side. Sometimes it causes the general posture to be involved and the muscles of the head and face fail to function as they should. There may be disfigurement of the face and even impairment of speech.

Neglect of chronic wry-neck is unwise. Do not be alarmed if operation is advised. It is a simple procedure and leads to speedy and permanent relief.

Squeeze

Hidden in the routine report of Italy's great project to enlarge its sphere of influence is one of the early traces of the effect of League of Nations economic sanctions. Premier Mussolini it is reported will give a three month furlough to approximately 100,000 soldiers to strengthen Italy against trade penalties.

The furloughed soldiers would develop latent industrial and agricultural resources. Obviously, their army pay would be saved. But there is another side of the incident. Italy's huge army has been a means of absorbing the unemployed. Tens of thousands of men have been kept busy in military service which provides them with food, clothing, shelter and money for their families.

Any necessity which forces Premier Mussolini to change the status of men who have found shelter in the army is potentially dangerous. If the objective of sanctions is to embarrass Italy's dictatorship progress is being made.

Too Weak To Resist.

The recent British election in which the government maintained itself by promising to build a fleet capable of defending the island and the empire provokes a question on the wisdom of a favorite practice among admirals and generals.

These worthies consistently look on the gloomy side of things. At any given moment they confess dolorously that their navies and armies aren't strong enough to be worth considering. Some times the effect is anything but favorable.

Obviously the objective of this mournful approach is to convince taxpayers it is absolutely necessary to give the admirals and generals more ships, more guns, more men and more everything. But what does the potential enemy make of such pessimism?

Italy might never have challenged British supremacy in the Mediterranean had not British admirals themselves confessed they lacked the strength to resist. Germany might not be thinking of making trouble if France hadn't insisted all along that it lacked strength to prevent its traditional foe from doing as it pleased.

The United States like its neighbors professes to be next to helpless. American defenders hate to think what would happen if anything did happen. The whole chorus of misery suggests that there might be a better way—at least a more honest way—to approach Armageddon.

Why not try boasting of superior strength for a change? Instead of building up the confidence of rivals, why not undermine their morale with exaggerated statements? For proof of what could be done look at Premier Mussolini, who, by sticking out his chin and admitting Italy is ready to take on all comers, actually has convinced a large part of the world that Italy is pretty close to being invulnerable? The result is no one seems to want to start anything.

Resettlement.

The natural desire of every agency of the government to make itself appreciated has caused the resettlement administration under Rexford G. Tugwell's direction to prepare for circulation a booklet explaining its program.

Readers of the booklet will be impressed by the text and the illustrations. The waste of natural resources and the distress of families in wasted areas are not new discoveries but they never fail to be shocking when they are revealed.

Few fields of activity could be more inviting to men who believe in national planning, than resettlement. To such men it is a game in which thousands of square miles of land and millions of human beings are the pieces to be moved and arranged logically.

Perhaps no other detail of the general program of the More Abundant Life reveals so clearly the limitless ambition of the national planners than the resettlement administration. At the same time no other detail displays more forcefully the real problem of planning.

That is the problem of administration. The resettlement administration's booklet is an outline of a gigantic enterprise in planning. The resettlement administration's record to date shows the difficulty which is encountered by all planners.

Administrator Tugwell has hired 12,082 persons to carry out the project which is part of the general work relief program. To date however the resettlement administration has been marking time in a preparatory stage. Its booklet describes what might be done but can show virtually nothing which has been done. The contrast between fact and fancy between good execution and good intention reveals once more that the new deal has hurled a challenge to administration which an untrained bureaucracy is unable to answer with deeds.

A Witness of Progress

Monday will mark a birthday anniversary of more than ordinary interest to Marion county residents. It will be the ninety seventh milestone in the life of Samuel E. Hain who has a record of distinction in the history of his country and home community.

Few citizens have the privilege of looking back upon lives so full of useful activities as that of Mr. Hain. In addition to two years of strenuous service in the Civil war he engaged in business and farming and filled numerous township school and county offices always performing his duties in a way that contributed to public advancement.

While other people have read and heard about all that has happened in the last century and the great changes wrought through achievement in all fields of human endeavor Mr. Hain has the picture drawn for him from personal experience and observation.

His memory takes him back to the early days of log cabins and covered wagons when a large part of Marion county was virgin forest and Marion was a village of only a few hundred populationn.

To communicate with friends living in another section of the county a trip with horse and wagon was necessary and this required a day or more.

News of happenings at the nation's seat of government and other distant points was not received until days and sometimes weeks had elapsed and tidings from across the seas came after the passing of months.

Now newspapers bring to Mr. Hain telegraphic accounts of the days events throughout the world and the radio instantly conveys words and music over air waves that span hundreds and thousands of miles.

It is indeed an amazing first hand account of progress that this venerable Marion citizen can give from what he has seen and experienced in his 97 years.

Admiral Earl Jellicoe.

The British will continue to argue about Admiral Earl Jellicoe for many years to come. The admiral who died this week at the age of 75 must have been tired of the controversy which raged about him.

It was his privilege and his responsibility to lead the royal fleet into the battle of Jutland Britain's great naval encounter of the World war. From that vitally important engagement with the German navy Great Britain emerged victorious yet defeated.

That seeming paradox was not really a paradox at all but the irony of modern warfare which does not permit decisive victories. So well matched were the two fleets so gigantic was the task of ordering them in the great engagement that Britain while ill intimidated Germany never has claimed a clean cut triumph because of its own enormous losses.

The royal fleet was numerically superior to the German fleet which caused Britain naval experts to expect more than Admiral Jellicoe was able to gain. A courageous gentleman a loyal defender and a brilliant naval officer Admiral Jellicoe became one of the best known figures of the World war. His death is another reminder that the World war generation is rapidly disappearing.

As a contribution to national welfare Clark Gable ought to announce the choice of his third wife as soon as possible so that women voters can get interested in who is likely to be the next Republican nominee for president.

Sally Rand wasn't the least bit offended when a Pennsylvania college professor refused to appear on a luncheon club program with her and for that matter the club members didn't seem greatly disappointed.

Although several days have elapsed since a $3.80 reduction in tax rates was announced at Tiffin no unusual number of deaths from heart failure have been reported.

Records now indicate that Japan can easily lay claim to being the world's foremost collector of China.

The Thanksgiving feast is expected to cost a little more this year but as usual it will be worth the price even to paying the family doctor for digestive adjustments.

JUDGE JOHN BARTRAM

A name linked with the early history of Marion county is that of Judge John Bartram who came to Marion county Nov. 20 182 . He was born June 12, 1804 in Redding Fairfield county, Conn.

He began office as township clerk in 1831 was elected justice of the peace in 1832 and reelected in 1835 and 1838. He was appointed postmaster by Postmaster General McLean in 1833 and resigned in 1835 on account of ill health. Serving as assistant auditor from 1835 to 1838 he was again appointed postmaster and served until 1841. He next served as commissioner to fill a vacancy of one year and then was made fund commissioner of the county. After engaging in the dry goods business for a while he resumed his law studies and was admitted to the bar. He served as prosecuting attorney was representative to the state legislature and senator.

On the occasion of his golden wedding anniversary Sept. 25 1877 Judge Bartram was presented a magnificent gold headed cane by the Marion Bar. The presentation speech was made by Col. John J. Williams.

New York Day by Day

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—I was listening to Mary Margaret McBride once a newspaper woman herself over the radio the other day. On the air she goes by the pseudonym of Martha Deane a kitchenly pink fluted pantry shelf name that somehow suggests a definite sugar bowl and initialed napkin ring.

Appropriate too for Miss McBride talks a good real table food. And with a back country gusto that betrays her origin. She spoke of the grape arbor in her native Paris, Mo. brick walked and loaded down with the "purple slippy ones." One naively for a grape arborless childhood.

And she spoke of persimmon and home-made candy. I believe indigenous to Missouri. Also of Jonathan apples, peach sweet pickles, syrupy pear preserves, salt rising bread, crisp fried mush with buckwheat molasses, persimmons and culinary yumyums entirely lost to the metropolitan area.

Nothing stirs forgotten pools of memory like recalling those dishes that pleased our juvenile palates. Transplanted we try to pattern our tastes to petite marmite instead of pot likker. Put our thoughts wander like those straying fingers on the old parlor clavichord.

I have acquired a reproduction from England of Lord Byron's favorite desk chair. It is enormously high backed with out swivel and upholstered in walnut brown leather. The arm rests are capacious and invite indolence. One sinks into the delightful depths and thinks of thyme rosemary dark velvet streams and quatrains of swans in graceful glide. No wonder Byron wrote those things.

Behind The News In Washington and Wall Street

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—Prof. Tugwell is reported now to be engaged in a strong constructive move to whip his army of rural resettlers into an efficient governmental unit.

The first step is reported to have been taken very quietly a few days ago when he hired a New York designer to create a distinctive uniform for some sections of his force.

This big first step was made so softly that the professor's publicity system was not advised of it. Some head men in it professed amazement when the designer walked in to get the feel of headquarters for a few days in order that the new uniform creation might be something really outstanding.

Sabotage

An inner RRA commotion somewhat akin to an non-social revolution is supposed to have followed. Publicity men have no souls. They felt apparently that the professor's purpose might be misunderstood. In fact they counseled against the move so strongly that the matter now is momentarily in abeyance.

At any rate no announcement has been made. There is at least a vague possibility that none will be. In fact the news might have been lost to the world entirely if rival designers had not talked and permitted the word to spread to other inside quarters here.

Pink Pants

If anything prevents the professor from going through with the plan it will be nothing but the lack of imagination among government bureaucrats and rival jealousy. Inside some other government bureaus already the RRA inner commotion is known as the pink pants mutiny. These smart alecks are erroneously convinced such a shade will emerge after the designer gets too feel of the Welsh mansion.

Worse are the unthinking enemies of Prof. Tugwell who are more or less laughingly expecting a red shirt brigade. This is an equally preposterous dig designed to defeat the project. If Tugwell wanted anything so obvious he would not have sent to New York for expert inspirations.

Purpose

His real friends lean toward an overall design. This would be entirely in keeping with the nature of the work. It could be an unostentatious cerulean hue which would enable his field staff to be distinguished easily from the exceptionally poorly dressed farmers they are uplifting. At the same time it would be relatively easy to pick them off in crowds.

As for the professor his instructions are said to have been generously broad. All he wanted apparently was something which would not conflict with the army, navy, CCC and Marine Corps.

Necessity

In all such projects the men who do things run up against critics who fail to understand the full depth of social undertows. All leaders of men have realized the uniforms make for discipline and morale. And anyone who knows the real situation within the RRA will appreciate the desirability of something along this line.

Most observers will agree that the professor will make a mistake if he limits the uniforming to a field force. They will demand that he include his various bureau chiefs, clerks and stenographers although a different uniform may be necessary for these.

If he wavers here artistic men here who will demand that the Literary Digest conduct a poll to show Dr. Tugwell has the nation is behind him was behind.

Spontaneity

Months ago the new deal publicity men received an order from the top requiring that all speeches made by cabinet members be prepared in advance. The idea was to prevent gaffes and keep cabinet members from getting around talking extemporaneously.

The only important deviation from that order came recently when Gov. Eccles of the federal reserve addressed the Iowa bankers association. He gave out no speech in advance spoke from notes. The reasons are supposed to have been two. He revised completely what he intended to say at the last minute and he wanted no publicity.

The results however were not satisfactory and the incident is not likely to be repeated.

Genius

News dispatches have greatly heightened interest among politicians here in the candidacy of a Republican congressional nominee in Michigan. He has been established as something of an idol here in view of reports that he favors the Townsend plan to pay the aged $200 a month cash payment of the bonus also a balanced budget and sound money.

By LOU SCHNEIDER
(Pinch hitting for James McMullin)

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—Informed quarters talk of a nationwide propaganda campaign which is to start in this country asking that President Roosevelt be given complete power to impose economic sanctions against nations at war. Secretary of State Hull and Norman H. Davis—roaming ambassador of the United States—are aware of this movement.

It will gain full strength just about the time congress is ready to go into session early in January. The drive will be to get people to believe that in no other way can we enforce absolute American neutrality.

The propaganda movement will be launched by the groups which are anxious to have the United States join the League of Nations. Internationalists say that Great Britain will also do its part in the publicity work the having so much to gain.

Battle

In trying to enforce an arms embargo President Roosevelt is handicapped by the limited authority given him by the last session of congress. I was Secretary Hull who said that the President is under duty and unreasonably handicapped.

Nationalists don't think so. They believe that if the President is to have such power this country will get itself in to foreign entanglements. We had our fill in 1917 and we don't want it again.

These nationalists are willing to have a law passed saying that all munition manufacturing and industries that would produce articles used in time of war should be limited as to profits. But they don't want a law giving the President any president—full authority to act as he sees fit. And so we shall have a grand battle on the subject early in January.

Hope

When Woodrow Wilson ran for reelection the big Democratic slogan was "Wilson Wins Without War." That was the big "W" cry. In 1936 the Democrats are going to raise the Three R's with Roosevelt Republican Radicalism. The cry was accepted hoping it will bring Hearst into the Roosevelt trenches.

Safety

The basis for the rise in securities is declared to be an extension of the upward trend of general business. Corporate reports for the third quarter and the nine months substantiate earlier beliefs that we are witnessing progressive stages of the recovery phase of the business cycle.

Bond dealers say there is room for further improvement.—If all goes well and the administration doesn't dump the apple cart. In view of the prevailing prices on common shares these dealers are urging clients into bonds which have conversion privileges. It's a form of speculation yet carries a bit of investment safety. But low share prices bring about low prices for these bonds.

Pending

On December 15th $418,291,000 treasury 2½% notes will mature. Government bond dealers say that judging from the fiscal equivalents and the status of the federal bond market it would not be surprising if the treasury offered approximately $1,000,000,000 of 2's in order to take care of this maturity and to raise additional funds to meet current expenditures. Part of the funds might be raised through offering noteholders an option to exchange their maturing notes for new 1½% 5-year treasury notes. Government bond specialists aren't excited about the pending offer.

SEC

Stock brokers are really worried these days. Activity of the trading market has aroused the curiosity of the public. They too wish to buy and sell—for quick gains. The public doesn't know a thing about securities and they are taking all pieces of information and advice they get from branch office managers and other brokers employes.

But Section 9 of the securities exchange act of 1934 says that any person receiving information from a broker can recover all losses from that broker if no stock was purchased from that same broker. That goes for his agents as well. Because of this stock brokers believe that as if and when the general list of prices starts falling—and prices don't stay up forever—law suits will come in large numbers.

But there are provisions of the act that place a certain amount of liability on the customer too. Brokers are having fun in collecting commissions and they aren't permitting any fears to get the better of them.

Sidelights

Labor trouble is expected to come in bunches in the next 60 days. Usually, does when plant activity slackens—labor leaders must show their tax paying members they are doing something. The cold weather snap helps merchandising organizations. Immediately after the turn of the year retail prices on clothing will be slightly reduced.

A liquid price war is about to start. It will be a fight between American and Canadian organizations.

NEWS OF STAGE AND SCREEN—MARION THEATER PROGRAMS

"Mutiny On The Bounty" And Marx Bros. On Bill

Tense Drama To Be Followed by Utter Nonsense at Palace Next Week.

The tense drama of "Mutiny on the Bounty" will be followed by the utter nonsense of "A Night at the Opera," next week at the Palace.

"Mutiny On the Bounty" is creating a sensation throughout the country, being held over for second and third weeks in many of the larger cities. The picture will be shown at a midnight preview tonight and will continue as the stellar attraction through Wednesday.

Thanksgiving day will usher in a three-day showing of the Marx Brothers in their latest laugh-riot, "A Night at the Opera."

Staid critics slow to unbend to any picture have thrown over the traces for "Mutiny On the Bounty," and are dashing out reams of praise for Charles Laughton's characterization of the tyrannical disciplinarian, the cruel but dauntless Captain Bligh, and they have been appreciative of the work of Clark Gable as Fletcher Christian, the young man who leads the mutiny, and Franchot Tone as Midshipman Byam who supports Gable's insurrection.

Place in History

The most dramatic maritime mutiny in England's long and glorious naval history is depicted by the three men and a large cast that includes Eddie Quillan, Dudley Digges, Donald Crisp, Henry Stephenson, Francis Lister and Spring Byington.

James Hall and Charles Nordhoff wrote the original story of the H. M. S. Bounty on which the mutiny was staged. Living today on Pitcairn Island in the southern Pacific ocean are persons who can trace their ancestry to the group of mutineers who sailed there 150 years ago.

A majority of the scenes are aboard the Bounty, but for the island scenes the entire isthmus of Catalina Island was leased. Two lovely Polynesian girls, Mamo and Movita, and 2,500 South Sea islanders have roles in the picture.

Grand opera must became fun when the madcap Marx Brothers mix into it as they do in "A Night at the Opera." Zeppo, the "straight" man in the quartet, has given up the films and that leaves the latest comedy in the hands of the three rowdies, Groucho, Chico and Harpo.

Full of Zip

"Sometimes I think they're sane, but after a day with them, I had my doubts," Director Sam Wood said, after working with the trio. "The thing that never ceased to amaze me about them," he said, "is their unbounded energy. They were just as fresh after a hard day before the camera as when it began, and just as apt to incite a riot."

Stately Margaret Dumont, whose very presence gives an added zip to the antics of the three, Kitty Carlisle and Allen Jones, who made his motion picture debut with Jean Harlow in "Reckless," are in the supporting cast. Jones and Miss Carlisle sing. Miss Dumont has been Groucho's leading woman for 10 years.

Morrie Ryskind and George S. Kaufman wrote the screen play, an expose of opera, with the Marx Brothers as managers for a pair of songbirds whose operatic career they are trying to further.

Married Comrades

BY ADELE GARRISON

Mrs. Gibbs Is Summoned To Help Care for Noel.

PROGRESS is slow in a rowboat, and my mental impatience at ours was so increased by fear for Noel in the other boat, that it seemed an eternity before Mr. Gibbs ran the boat he was guiding up on the sandy beach of his own home and directed me how to land mine. Then he spoke clearly, loudly to Noel.

"Don't be startled, old man," he said. "I'm going to blow a whistle for my wife. Do you understand me?"

"Yes." Noel's answer, though faint, was prompt, and the fear which had been mine when I first learned of his accident retreated another pace. He was able to speak and to understand, although evidently both processes were difficult.

The next instant the shrill tone of a police whistle cleft the air, sounding three notes, drawn out with appreciable spaces between them, and then three staccato notes, close together.

Go Back in Car

"That'll fetch her," he said confidently, and then turned his attention to me.

"If you'll just step out of the boat, Mrs. Graham," he said, leaping to the beach himself and extending a hand to me, "you'll be ready to go ahead to your camp with Noel in the car. You'll get there long enough ahead of us to have the fire in the smaller of our camps blazing well, and to make any other preparations necessary.

"This boy must be rubbed down well, put to bed and given plenty of hot, stimulating drinks. That much I know. What other treatment he is to have must be determined by a physician. Luckily, we have a marvelous man here at Plymouth, only 10 miles away—Dr. Rickey. If Neil telephones him right away, and he's in, he'll be at the camp by the time I can get Mr. Veritzen there. Ah! There comes Neil now."

A bobbing beam of light was coming down the slope from the Gibbs house to the beach, and when it drew nearer us I saw that the beam came from a flashlight held in the capable hands of Neil Gibbs. She needed it, for the darkness had come swiftly, as it does in the mountains, and the path to the shore was an uneven one.

Talks to Mary

"Well?" she asked, with cheery inquiry, as she reached us, and again I had the impression of a strong, attractive personality radiating aid and comfort to anybody near her—anybody worthy of aid. I imagined that she could be what Dicky calls "particularly hard-boiled" if anybody made the mistake of believing her to be credulous.

"Talk to your niece while I tell Neil what I want her to do," Mr. Gibbs said to me in the same low tones which he had used when he had been suggesting that I go in the car with his wife. His paternity did not wish Noel to hear any of the plans made for his comfort, fearing to irritate him. And I was sure that Noel's ears, chilled by the blow on his head, had heard nothing. Nor had Mary, in her absorption in her husband's comfort, noticed anything. I was sure of that as I stepped nearer their boat and, raising my voice, spoke her name.

"Yes!" she returned, in startled intonation, and then added piteously, "Oh, Auntie Madge, he's shivering so, and his teeth are chattering. What can I do?"

Goes With Neil

"Just hold him as close as you can, darling," I told her compassionately. "I'm going to drive back to the camp with Mrs. Gibbs, so that I can get everything ready to take care of Noel as soon as you get in. And you may be sure Mr. Gibbs will row as fast as he can. Noel will be all right as soon as we get him warm and dry."

"Oh, do you think so?" she pleaded.

"I know so," I answered firmly. And then Mr. Gibbs said quietly, "Now, Mrs. Graham!"

I turned, to see the figure of a muscular-looking man stooping over the boat and tying it to the pier.

"Pete will help me row back," said Mr. Gibbs. And then Mrs. Gibbs without bothering to comment, slipped her hand under my elbow.

"We'll have to hurry," she said. "Pete, our man of all work, is not all there with an I. Q., but he's a powerful oarsman and he'll send that boat flying; I'm glad I brought him along. I thought I would better, when I heard Bob's signal. That whistle always means one or two people are needed urgently."

"You have everything worked out to the last syllable, haven't you?" I asked, with sincere admiration.

"It is necessary, up here in the woods," she said. "Now I'll tell you about our doctor, so you can be calling him while I get out some extra blankets and a heavy bathrobe that have done duty on these unexpected immersion cases before."

ARRAY OF PICTURES BOOKED FOR MARION

New Type Western and Return of Cleopatra Head List For Week.

The Marion has booked an array of pictures for next week's programs, including a return showing of the lavish "Cleopatra," on Tuesday and Wednesday and the new-type western picture, "Powder-smoke Range," on Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Sunday and Monday the attractions will be "Case of the Missing Man," with Roger Pryor and Joan Perry featured, and a Harry Carey western, "Wild Mustang."

"Case of the Missing Man" is a different tale, about a street-photographer, Pryor, who snaps a picture of a daring criminal and thereby becomes the prey of a gang of desperate thieves. Arthur Hohl, a suave villain, is the man whose picture is snapped as he saunters nonchalantly out of a jewel shop he has just plundered. Pryor gives him a card, which invites him to send in a quarter and secure his photograph. Hohl sends his henchmen instead, and the excitement begins.

Henry Wilcoxon, Richard-the-Lion-Hearted of "The Crusades," plays handsome Marc Antony to Claudette Colbert's luscious Cleopatra in the picture of that name. Warren William plays the role of Caesar. Cecil B. DeMille outdid himself on spectacular settings to tell of the love affair of the Egyptian queen and the Roman Antony.

Frankie Darro, juvenile actor, and Roy Mason are starred in "Men of Action," which will be on the same bill with "Cleopatra." The picture was adapted from the story, "The New Freedom," by Peter B. Kyne. The attempted destruction of one of the west's largest irrigation dams by a group of wealthy and unscrupulous financiers and the heroic efforts of three persons to save the gigantic structure is the theme of the story. Gloria Shea is the leading woman.

Believing that good western pictures with good players still have a place in films, RKO Radio has started a new series of western pictures. One of them, "Powder-smoke Range," will be shown Thursday through Saturday on a double bill with a return showing of "Wings in the Dark," which stars Myrna Loy and features Cary Grant.

Harry Carey and Hoot Gibson head the stellar array of western talent in "Powdersmoke Range." Guinn "Big Boy" Williams, Bob Steele, Tom Tyler, Frank Rice, Franklyn Farnum, Bill Desmond, Wally Wales, Art Mix, William Farnum, Buffalo Bill Jr. and Buzz Barton are other premier western players, with blond Boots Mallory providing the feminine interest. With Los Potros, a California cattle town of the late sixties as the locale, the picture deals with the exploits of Harry Carey and his cowboy pals in thwarting an outright theft of a huge ranch. A man-to-man six-gun duel at sunset and a spectacular range war are features.

CHAPTER 44
Muddy Road

IT WAS then I sent for Miss Farnsworth," said John Neuman, "knowing she was the legal owner of the canneries."

"You might tell Anne how you found the other evidence," suggested Kellogg.

"That was easy," John smiled: "every fisherman on the waters was interested in freeing her. Bit by bit they brought in little things and by piecing them together we built up the true story of what had happened And of course I cabled for Judge Kellogg as soon as I learned Miss Anne had been charged.'

"Why didn't you bring this evidence to me?" the district attorney asked.

John faced the man soberly. "I should have done that' he acknowledged, "but it's an old Finnish custom to trust no one while he's in the enemy s camp. I wanted to wait and let Kellogg tell you I felt his word would have more weight than a fisherman's."

There was a knock at the door When the district attorney came back he turned to Anne. "Mrs Lee Farnsworth wants to talk to you"

Anne hesitated a moment, then squaring her shoulders said, 'All right'

Mrs Farnsworth stepped into the room, smiled at Anne, and with open arms came across to her

Anne watched Charlotte approach her, and stepped back from the outstretched arms.

'Dear little niece," she began, "you don't know my relief at finding you not guilty of that dastardly deed. Oh, we've grieved so over you '

"Thank you, Mrs Farnsworth," said Anne

"Aunt Charlotte, dear"

"You asked me once' not to call you that," Anne countered 'I'm the same girl now that I was then"

"I was distraught, the tragic death of those two loved ones and everything at such odds. You'll forgive me, Anne?"

'It doesn't matter," Anne turned away, then after a moment turned back, "and I'm terribly sorry about Uncle Lee I loved him, truly '

"You're coming home with us now, Anne, right back to your own little rooms and maybe we can find Yvonne"

"That is your home," Anne countered, and turned to Tecla and John "My home is with my people"

"But my dear girl," Mrs Farnsworth's sweetness was vanishing, "you can't pretend you can handle everything yourself You come home with us and we'll take care of you Rob can go right on taking care of the canneries, because you must admit Anne, that a mere girl can't handle the business Don't you think I'm right?' she appealed to the men in the room

There was only silence to answer her question, until at last Anne went to the district attorney's desk, asked for pen and paper, sat down and wrote industriously

"Will you sign this please, Judge Kellogg?" she asked

"Gladly," agreed her friend after glancing over it, and scrawled his name on the paper

Mrs Farnsworth took the paper and read it aloud

"To Robert Crocker

"Your immediate resignation from any and all positions you now hold in the Farnsworth Fisheries, Incorporated, will be acceptable to the present owner.

(Signed) "Anne Farnsworth, "Owner."

"Why, you young snip," Charlotte Farnsworth's poise had left her, "do you think you can do a thing like this while there are courts of law in this land?"

"I'm depending upon the justice of those courts," Anne answered calmly. Then she turned to the others, "May I go home now?"

She paused and realized the last time she had made that remark was two months ago, before the doors of the jail clanged shut behind her.

"I've my car here," offered Kellogg

"Then will you drive Tecla home, and give her lots of money? We're going to have a festival and I want every one in Union Town there Buy lots of food and coffee, everything they like. And Tecla, tell Lilsa she has her job back, and if any of the fishermen reach there before I get home, tell them I'll try to make up to them for what they lost this last summer

"And you?" asked Ansel Kellogg.

"John and I are going to walk home." She smiled as everyone echoed, "walk." 'You don't know how good it will seem to walk along without bumping into bars."

With John she escaped from the courthouse through a rear door, then silently they plodded along through the gathering twilight.

For a while Anne was content with the joy of walking, of taking long steps, swinging her arms, breathing deep and looking up with nothing to obscure her gaze of the sky, a sky mottled with the faint ambertinged gray of the clouds And then there seemed the necessity of words

"John" she ventured, "remember the night I first came down here and Tecla met me at the door? Do you remember how she acted and what she said?"

"Yes," he assented, "she said 'Annikki, Enkell' She thought she was seeing the ghost of your father's twin sister, who's name was Annikki, and for whom you were named "However," he added, "I didn't know it at the time."

"Let's take the old road over the hill top, the one that comes down in back of my house," Anne suggested as they neared a cross street.

"It may be muddy," John demurred

"I'd like that," she confessed, "after these weeks of walking on the highly antiseptic floors of hospitals and jails, I'd like some nice brown gumbo on my shoes.

"John" as they turned up a shrub lined road, "why did Rob Crocker have the revolver oiled and buy the cartridges, if Tom was the one who was going to use it?"

"I imagine Tom was cunning enough to provide that alibi. If the revolver hadn't been found and identified at Lake Farnsworth's, he couldn't have been connected with the shooting To me, Nikki, it proves premeditation. He can say what he pleases about merely having it handy for protection of the canneries I believe he hoped to find you alone, sooner or later."

Anne shuddered, looked at the dense bushes growing along the roadside, and drew closer to John.

"You need'nt worry, now," he assured her, "Tom was taken to jail right away and he won't be allowed out on bail."

"And Rob?"

"Arrested by the federals as he left the courthouse. They've succeeded in connecting him with the bootleg trap. The men working on the legal traps were willing to insist they were owners but those on the bootleg trap confessed in the hope of getting immunity."

'Poor Sharlee," mused Anne, and John looked down at her with a queer smile.

'You're generous," he commented.

"But she wasn't to blame for anything With a mother like Charlotte, how could she have been different? John, I believe I'll see that she and Aunt Malvel take a trip aboard to forget."

"And Charlotte?"

"As Lilsa says, 'drat her' My generosity stops there I believe she's as guilty as Rob or Tom She should be spending the balance of her days in the Salem penitentiary, also

"Nikki," they had reached the top of the hill and were looking down on Union Town, looking out on the Pacific. Behind them night was crowding over the hills, but out there the afterglow still smudged the horizon with topaz. 'Nikki, I won't be far from Salem, after this week"

Anne felt her breath catch, a pain stab at her heart. "What do you mean?" she asked.

"I'm going to Corvallis Had a wire from the coach—he wants me to come down and take over the junior teams."

"And your boat—" she stopped short. There wouldn't be any trawler, because John had probably spent his money saving her from prison, perhaps that was why she had received such special care at the hospital. It hadn't occurred to her to ask who had paid the bills for all of the service she had received

She looked at John. So, like Rob, he was going away, going to leave her to face her new problems alone. Only she knew why he was going.

He had taken the soft hat from his head and was standing, looking out to the sea, the fine features set in grim, hopeless lines.

Monday, Anne accuses John of "running out on her."

20 Rural Cage Teams Play On County School Cour

Prospect, Pleasant, LaRue Capture Double Victories

Contests Open Season for Four Schools; Waldo Splits With Green Camp, Martel with Morral.

TWENTY county basketball teams were in action last night as the season's schedule for rural schools got into full swing. It was the opening game of the season for four schools, the other six having played their first games last week. Claridon is the lone team which has not yet played a league contest. Claridon's season will open next Wednesday night when it entertains the Agosta squad.

Prospect, winner last week over Caledonia, retained its first place position by scoring a 31 to 15 victory over Kirkpatrick last night. The Prospect team led in scoring through all of the four periods and forward Baumgardner scored 11 points out of 31. In a preliminary game, the Prospect girls' team defeated the Kirkpatrick team, 17 to 12. It was Kirkpatrick's first conference game of the season and was played on the Prospect floor.

Pleasant Teams Win

Pleasant school teams scored a double victory at Agosta last night by winning the boys' game, 14 to 13, and the girls' contest, 30 to 6. The Pleasant boys held a 6 to 4 lead at the end of the first period but dropped behind during the second quarter and Agosta held a half-time lead of 9 to 5. Pleasant picked up two points in the third quarter while Agosta was held scoreless. In the final quarter Pleasant tallied six points while Agosta collected four. The Pleasant girls' team had little trouble in upsetting its Agosta opponents. With a 14 to-2 lead at the half, Pleasant held a substantial margin to the finish of the game. Agosta, having won over Martel last week, now has a standing of .500. It was the opening game of the season for the Pleasant teams.

LaRue opened the 1935-36 season on its home floor last night with Caledonia teams and came through with two victories. The boys' team won 34 to 22, and although the game was nip and tuck, the victors held a lead up until the final whistle. The LaRue boys downed their opponents 34 to 22, Ruckman, star LaRue center, led the team with 15 points to his credit. The girls' game ended with LaRue scoring a 23 to21 victory over the Caledonia girls.

Teams Divide Honors

Waldo, playing in its second game of the season, split in a twin bill on the Green Camp floor last night. The Green Camp boys' team, engaged in its first league competition, scored a 23 to 14 victory to hold a perfect average. The Waldo lassies, conquerors of the Morral team last week, kept their 1,000 per cent standing when they reassigned a 26 to 12 victory over Waldo.

In two hard fought battles last night at the Morral gymnasium, the Martel-Morral teams gained one victory each. The Martel girls scored a 24 to 23 win over Morral while the boys team from Martel lost its game 20 to 19.

"Trader Horns" of Baseball End Minor League Meeting in Dayton.

By The Associated Press

DAYTON, O. Nov. 23—Baseball's "Trader Horns," homeward bound from the minor league meeting, looked back today at several deals which may make or break pennant hopes in the 1936 major loop campaign.

It was generally agreed that the Cincinnati Reds and the St. Louis Cardinals benefitted most from the swaps and purchases made at the three-day meeting which closed Friday.

The Reds, in buying George McQuinn, lefthanded first sacker from the Newark Bears of the International loop, secured one of the best of the minor league crop. Baseball men predicted McQuinn would replace the veteran Jim Bottomley as the regular first sacker for Cincinnati.

Whitehead for Parmelee

The Cards, in trading second baseman Burgess Whitehead to the Giants for pitcher Bud Parmelee, got just what they needed to stay in the thick of the senior league race — another starting hurler. Parmelee should lift much of the mound load from the shoulders of the Dean boys next season.

Cincinnati added five players besides McQuinn to its roster.

Lee Stine, righthanded hurler, came from the White Sox in a deal which sent infielder Joe Morrissey and some cash to the Chicago club. Stine won 18 and lost 11 for St. Paul last year. Bill Raimondi, young catcher, was bought from the Oakland team, while Hub Walker, outfielder with Toledo last year, engineered his own deal in going to the Reds. He batted .333 for the Mudhens in 1935. Another deal brought the Reds pitcher Earl Cook and third baseman Lee Handley from Toronto for cash.

Among other reported deals was that the Philadelphia Athletics had sold shortstop Eric McNair and outfielder Roger Cramer to Boston, and third baseman Pinky Higgins to the Yanks.

$125,000 Is Too Much

The $125,000 price tag placed on Jimmy Foxx by the Athletics was too high for any takers, although every one admitted that Foxx would make a pennant contender of at least four or five of the American league clubs.

Jimmy Dykes, skipper of the Chicago White Sox, said Al Simmons had been offered to Detroit at a fairly hefty price and that the deal is now up to Micky Cochran, Detroit manager, and his boss, W. O. Briggs.

Joe Carr, promotional director of the minors, said six new leagues would be in operation next season, bringing the total to 27. Two class D loops, the Southeastern and the Ohio State, were organized last week.

Speculation still was rampant on who would succeed Thomas Jefferson Hickey as president of the American association, but the candidates had dwindled to two. Billy Evans, former general manager of the Cleveland Indians, and Lou C. McEvoy, business manager of the St. Louis Browns, were the ones considered. The new A. A. president will be named at the Chicago meeting, Dec. 10.

Next year's minor meeting will be held in Montreal.

Marion, Bucyrus Punchers Share in Ring Honors Here

Main Feature Decision Goes to Akron Fighter; Jones Scores Knockout in Second Round.

Jack Smith of Akron, received an eight-round judges' decision in his scrap with the Chocolate Kid of Columbus, presented as the main feature match on the ring card at the Shovel gym last night. Smith held slight advantages in height and reach, and pounded out the decision in a series of fast rounds. He was unable to use his right hand for any heavy punching because of an injury suffered in a bout last week, but he made the left do double duty in getting the decision from the scrappy Columbus fighter.

Smith managed to gain the edge in the first four rounds by effectively using his left for short jabs to the Kid's face. Smith continued to hold a slight edge over the Chocolate Kid in the remaining rounds when he usually managed to land hard blows.

Bucyrus Boy Wins

Herman Feldner, Jr., and Ralph Boulton, both of Marion, acted as announcer and referee, respectively.

Steve Barcic, battling Bucyrus boy, took a six-round decision from Mike O'Dowd of Columbus. Mike, fighting from a crouching position, was weighed in one pound heavier than Barcic, but was at a disadvantage because of Steve's reach. Neither fighter was off h's feet during the entire six rounds but they alternated in pummelling each other to the ropes and landing hard rights and lefts to the face.

After taking the first two rounds of his scrap with little trouble, Bob Greenland of Marion, last a six-round decision to Kid Chudrick of Akron. Chudrick came back strong in the later rounds to drive Greenland into the ropes and once to the mat for the count of nine. Greenland previously had scored a knock-down early in the first round, but couldn't keep up the fast pace he started.

Jones Scores Knockout

Sammy Jones, Marion's clever Lilie colored fighter, threatened to steal the show in his neat knock out exhibition in one of the four round matches. Jones, matched with Tody Cane of Akron, came out cautiously to open the first round. Sparring and trading blows he found an opening and drove over a hard right which sent Cane to the mat for the count of nine. In the second round Jones still observing his usual caution, spotted the same opening and sent over another hard right to the jaw to gain the knockout.

Steve Diamond of Akron received a four-round decision over Tiny Moore of Marion in another of the bouts presented. Tiny Moore, a southpaw, has just recently been trained to lead with his left and he was able to use it effectively in the scrap last night. He showed good form as he slashed his way into the Akron fighter and traded blows during heavy infighting.

Jack McClearn of Kenton, waded in fast for the opening round of his fight with Art Maskey of Akron. Maskey, however, took things easy and came back later to gain a four-round decision.

In a curtain-raising preliminary, Kid Stumbo received a decision over Carl Weisman. The fighters who opened the card with a two-rounder are both of Marion.

GRIDIRON RACE FOR AMERICAN HONORS NARROWING TODAY

Ohio State at Michigan, Minnesota Meets Illinois in Big Ten Tilts.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Nov. 23—The nation's football machines rolled out today for the climax of the regular season, destined to narrow the race for mythical American honors.

A feeling of expectancy was in the air as the undefeated and untied Golden Bears of California locked with Stanford.

In the east, Princeton and Dartmouth, both with spotless records, clashed to settle the championship of the eastern "Ivy" league before a crowd expected to exceed 55,000, the largest in the history of the Tiger stadium.

Harvard and Yale were scheduled to resume their old rivalry with Yale a distinct favorite, but an element of doubt arose from records which show that past performances mean little when these two colleges collide on the gridiron.

Notre Dame, defeated by Northwestern and tied by Army, was a favorite to defeat a coming Southern California team.

Ohio State, which Notre Dame knocked from a dream of a national title, lined up with Michigan. Minnesota, undefeated and untied, was expected to plough under Wisconsin. Northwestern met Iowa in a game that was fraught with uncertainty, the uncertainty due in main to Oze Simmons, who has been known to run wild in Iowa's backfield.

Jay Berwanger sings his swan song as Chicago meets Illinois. Iowa State meets Kansas. Kansas State plays Missouri and Creighton. Marquette in other midwestern games.

Harding High Football Men Name Captains

Members of the varsity squad of the Harding High football team met yesterday to select an honorary captain for the season just ended and also a captain for the 1936 season.

Dave Isaly, senior letterman, was elected honorary captain and Forest Sharrock Jr., one of the few lettermen who will be eligible for the team next year, was elected captain of the 1936 team.

The twenty-five students who took part in varsity activities this year were eligible to vote on honorary captain while members of the squad were permitted to vote for next year's captain.

Coach Carl Cramer and Dave Isaly have been invited to attend the Mansfield High school football banquet, being staged by the News-Journal at the Mansfield-Leland Hotel next Tuesday night.

Heading the list of speakers at the banquet is Francis A. Schmidt, colorful Ohio State coach. In addition the program will include talks by L. W. St John, athletic director at Ohio State university, and Pete Stinchcomb, named on the All-American football team in 1920.

SHARKEY KNOCKS OUT HIS OPPONENT TWICE

By The Associated Press

BOSTON, Nov. 23—Jack Sharkey was safely past the first milepost in his campaign to regain the heavyweight title today, victor in a strange contest which he won by two knockouts.

In his first appearance in Boston in seven years Sharkey bowled over Eddie (Unknown) Winston, Hartford Negro, for the count of ten twice in six minutes and ten seconds of battling before 12,470 persons in the Boston Garden last night.

A minute and 10 seconds of the first round had gone when the cautious Winston was felled by two uppercuts.

Referee Johnny Martin counted Winston out and then, supported by one of the judges, accused the Negro of not trying and declared the fray no contest.

The crowd—largest a Garden bout has attracted in years—roared its protest and Sharkey, through his manager, appealed to members of the state boxing commission to allow Winston a fresh start. Commissioner Daniel J. Kelly consented.

The Negro was more aggressive as the second first round began but after two or three light jabs apparently lost his courage. Two or three more light jabs in the opening of the second round and the Hartford lad's work was done for the night.

Sharkey dropped Winston twice in the second session—once for the count of nine and the second time, at the two-minute mark, for the 10 count.

The former champion weighed 196 pounds, thirteen less than when he lost his title to Primo Carnera two years ago, and one pound less than the Hartford battler.

Sharkey received a $5,000 guarantee and Winston 15 per cent of the net gate, which a boxing commission deputy estimated at $14,103.

WRESTLES MONDAY

George Craig of Tulsa, Okla., will wrestle at the Shovel gym Monday night with Mexican Pete of Mexico City, in one of the two featured bouts. In the other main go, Buck Weaver and Yaqui Joe will exchange holds. A 20-minute preliminary completes the mat program.

The Marry-Go-Round
BY HELEN ROWLAND

MEN ARE BORN ADVENTURERS

The average woman's life is a book in which she turns to the last chapter first in order to know how it is going to turn out

A man on the other hand doesn't want to know It is the element of chance and uncertainty in life and love which most interests him It is the gamble as to whether he will catch the train or not that makes him put off running for it until the last minute And it is the uncertainty as to whether he will win or lose a girl which keeps him pursuing her

It's the chance he takes that makes him step on the accelerator or want to take a new and unknown road instead of sticking to the boulevard And it's the chances he takes in poker or love or betting on the ponies that really turn him from the straight and narrow way)

Oh yes man is a born gambler He doesn't want to know he doesn't try to make sure he's not interested in certainty

But a woman simply must know She feels that she has got to know In fact she always does know absolutely what she's going to do or say or think about anything long before it ever happens

She knows that a man is going to make love to her while he is still pondering over the problem of whether or not he has the nerve to call her on the telephone

She is always aware that she's going to marry him weeks or months before it has occurred to him to ask her Whereas he is never sure that he is going to show up at the church at the last moment—and often is utterly surprised to find himself walking down the aisle to meet her.

She knows exactly how she is going to spend his salary, while he doesn't even know how he is going to keep up the payments on her engagement solitaire And she knows precisely where and how they are going to build that little suburban home, while he is still wondering how long they can afford to continue living in the three-by-four kitchenette apartment.

She knows precisely what she wants when she goes into a shoppe or a department store, while a man doesn't even know what kind or color of hat he's going to buy until the salesman picks it out for him.

She knows just what she is going to spend [illegible] and just how much [illegible] dollars. [illegible]

[illegible] she knows [illegible] she [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

MORROW CASE IN HIGH COURT

Soldiers' Relief Dispute To Be Previewed by Supreme Tribunal on Dec. 10.

Special to The Star

MT. GILEAD, Nov. 23—The mandamus action of the Morrow county soldiers' relief commission against the Morrow county commissioners to compel the commissioners to make an additional appropriation of $1,800 for soldiers' relief here this year will be reviewed by the state supreme court Tuesday, Dec. 10.

The case is creating wideapread interest among veterans organizations and among county officials throughout the state as it is the first test of the powers of the soldiers' relief commission and the county commissioners in administration of the soldiers relief law.

The county commissioners refused to make the additional appropriation after exhaustion of the original $2,000 appropriation at the end of June although the relief commission claims they are empowered by law to ask for any sum up to one which would require a levy of one-half mill on the tax duplicate. In the case of this county they could have asked for an appropriation of $8,000 for the year.

The case was taken to the common pleas court by the attorney employed by the commission and the court issued a writ of mandamus requiring the county commissioners to make the appropriation. The case was appealed and the district appellate court sustained the decision of Judge P. H. Wieland. The county commissioners there upon appealed to the supreme court with the plea that they would be violating a constitutional provision concerning appropriating without funds if they are required to set aside the sum.

No relief payments have been made in the county since June 20 when the appropriation was exhausted and the case was first taken to the courts.
